On U. S. Troops
Sent To EuropeCongress Asks Voice
In Future Moves

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Members of both parties predicted today early Senate approval of resolutions to give Congress a voice in future U. S. troop assignments to the Western Europe defense force.

Although administration leaders were openly displeased at the form in which two committees approved the resolutions yesterday, Senators Byrd (D-Va.) and Knowland (R-Calif.) forecast Senate acceptance without major changes.

Cautious By Hoover

One resolution would put the Senate on record as okaying the transfer of four divisions to Europe and calling for congressional approval of any future moves of the kind. The other resolution, identical in wording, would require action by both Senate and House.

Former President Herbert Hoover was quoted as cautioning again last night that administration plans to send the four divisions to Europe may be just what Russia wants.

Hoover attended a meeting sponsored by Republican House members and answered questions at an off-the-record session. Representatives who attended said he warned that deployment of troops over Europe could set off an incident and lead to war.

Time Short

Senator McCarthy (R-Wisc.) said in a speech today the U. S. has only a limited time in which to rearm Western Europe—"the time during which it will take the Russian scientists to perfect a defense for our atom-carrying bombers."

When that time comes, McCarthy said, the Russians will be able to move unless "we have built up in Europe ground forces of sufficient power to deter them."

McCarthy said Western German and Spanish troops must be used to erect a sure western defense force, but Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's hands have been tied in that respect by a state department clique.

Four-Year Term
Measure KilledLansing Coalition
Beats Bill, 34-50

LANSING — (AP) — A coalition of Republicans and Democrats killed a proposal to give Michigan governors and other elected state officials a four-year term yesterday.

A proposed constitutional amendment doubling the officials' terms was defeated in the House 34-50. This was far short of the necessary 67 votes.

A move to revive the measure to lay it on the table for future action was also soundly trounced 35-47.

Earlier the House had refused to attach an amendment which would have limited governors to two four-year terms.

The 34 Democrats voted in a bloc against the proposal. They opposed a provision which would have held elections of state officials in the "off-years" between presidential elections.

Senator Perry W. Greene (R-Grand Rapids) filed a bill to abolish the Mackinac Island State Park commission and put the park under state conservation commission.

GLADSTONE — John D. Staple of 205 South 7th street, Gladstone, prominently known retired industrialist, died last evening at St. Francis hospital in Escanaba. Mr. Staple who had been in failing health the past six months would have been 77 years old today.

Born March 14, 1874, in Carleton, Ontario, Canada, Mr. Staple first came to the United States to Munising in 1893 in the employ of the Sutherland-Innes Limited of Canada which held extensive timber holdings in Alger county and operated a mill at Munising.

In 1898 at the time of the consolidation of the Sutherland-Innes and the Buckeye Stave Co. of Gladstone to form the Northwestern Co., he came to Gladstone as office manager and supervisor of production. He subsequently became secretary-treasurer of the Northwestern Co., advanced to vice president, and later to president. He held the latter office when he retired in 1939 upon liquidation of the firm.

Ziegler Backs
Highway TaxesTrucks Get Off Easy,
Says Commissioner

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. — (AP) — State Highway Commissioner Charles M. Ziegler says motorists want better roads so badly they'll be glad to pay five cents a gallon more in the gasoline tax if necessary.

Ziegler, interviewed at the opening yesterday of the 36th Michigan highway conference, also reiterated his opinion that trucks should pay a larger share of highway costs.

"There's no question that trucks are not paying their way," he said.

Supporting a two-cent boost in the gasoline tax, Ziegler adjured members of the legislature to "talk to their constituents."

He said this would convince them that the people want better roads "even if it costs them five cents a gallon."

The commissioner was critical of Governor Williams' tactics in proposing that the legislature appropriate $13,500,000 in highway revenue for use of state and county roads.

Ziegler said the governor referred to this amount as an excess in state road receipts over budget estimates.

"The governor," Ziegler said, "would give you the idea that he found this money but as a matter of fact it would have gone to the states and local units anyway."

Senators Start New
Quiz On Washington
Influence Peddlers

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A new Senate inquiry into "five percent" activities opens today with federal officials summoned for questioning about "influence peddlers and other shady operators" in the defense contract field.

Senator Hoey (D-NC) used that language in declaring a Senate investigating committee he heads is determined to "nip in the bud" any trading on influence in the mobilization program. The committee arranged a public hearing.

Freezer Gifts Recalled

Hoey's committee two years ago conducted a spectacular inquiry into the operations of five percenters—men who charge a fee, often five per cent, for help in getting government contracts for others.

That inquiry resulted in the perjury conviction of John F. Maragon, Washington man-about-town who once had a White House pass.

The committee at that time also dealt a sharp reprimand to Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, President Truman's army aide, for accepting seven home freezers as gifts, and for other reasons.

Vaughan gave one of the freezers to Mrs. Truman. Some of the other units went to other prominent Washingtonians.

Another result of the 1949 investigation was the retirement of Maj. Gen. Alden H. Waitt, then chief of the Army Chemical Corps.

In a statement prepared for the opening of the new inquiry, Hoey said his committee—a part of the Senate expenditures committee—"is now investigating complaints of the operations of influence peddlers and other shady operators" in the letting of defense contracts.

Looking For Tips

For questioning about those complaints and about what steps government agencies have taken to prevent influence peddling, the Hoey group called to the witness stand:

Jess Larson, chief of the general services administration; H. K. Clark, executive vice chairman of the munitions board; and defense purchasing officials representing the Army, Navy and Air Force.

Hoey said that after testimony by those officials the committee probably would hold a series of sessions behind closed doors to dig into what he termed "tips and leads regarding specific cases of influence peddling."

Hoey said none of the persons who figured in his group's 1949 five percent investigation has shown up so far in preliminary work on the new inquiry.

Public Invited
To Press Open
House Saturday

A public showing of the new Goss rotary press installed in the Escanaba Daily Press building will be held Saturday afternoon, March 17, from three to five o'clock.

The first formal issue of The Escanaba Daily Press dedicating the new press will be published Saturday afternoon. Installation of the new equipment was completed last week and test runs were made this week.

The general public is invited to attend the open house at the Daily Press Saturday. The old Goss press in use for the past 25 years is still in place and visitors will have an opportunity to make a comparison with the new equipment.

In connection with the public showing of the new press, a 16 mm sound film, "The Newspaper Story," prepared by the Encyclopedia Britannica Film Library, will be shown continuously on the second floor of the building Saturday afternoon. The film depicts the production of a modern newspaper from the development of the news story to the distribution of the printed paper.

In addition to inspecting the new Goss press, capable of producing 20 pages at a speed of 30,000 copies an hour, visitors will be invited to see all departments of the newspaper.

Visitors from the entire distribution area of the Escanaba Daily Press are invited.

Revised Lineup
In Stabilization
Board ProposedMobilization Effort
Needs Union Aid

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Management representatives were reported today to have said "no" to economic stabilizer Eric Johnston's compromise plan for reshaping the wage stabilization board as a dispute-handling agency.

A 20-man delegation representing the national association of manufacturers, U. S. chamber of commerce, and business advisory council of the commerce department called on Johnston this morning. The group agreed to allow the stabilizer to convey their stand to top labor union leaders this afternoon before making the reply public.

Truman Prepares Bill

However, persons in a position to know said it was a turn down. A news conference was scheduled for 4:30 p. m. EST to explain the management's attitude on the question of rebuilding the defunct wage stabilization board as an agency handling a limited list of disputes.

Organized labor leaders were reported to regard the compromise favorably. It would tend toward the type of wage board used in World War II, which handled all types of wage disputes.

Meanwhile, government officials said President Truman will send to Congress by April 1 a new basic mobilization bill. It is DETROIT — (AP) — Kaiser-Frazer Corp. plans to go on building 900 automobiles daily while preparing for production of C-119 Fairchild cargo planes at the Willow Run plant.

About 1,000,000 square feet of space in the big main manufacturing plant at nearby Willow Run will be tooled up for aircraft work. Meanwhile K-F will put its car production operations on a two-shift basis.

The two-shift schedule is to become effective March 26. Work on aircraft tooling will get under way at the same time. The K-F announcement hinted that cargo plane output should be under way by the end of the year. It said the present employment roll of some 11,000 workers would be augmented by an estimated 5,000 to 8,000 employees by the year end.

Communist Retreat
In Korea Outruns
Swift Allied Tanks

TOKYO — (AP) — Five South Korean patrols entered Seoul tonight and raised the Republic flag over the old capital building.

The Eighth Army said they met no opposition. "They will stay there if they can," an Eighth Army spokesman said.

Communist forces for the past three days have been reported mysteriously withdrawing all along 70 miles of the Korean front.

If the allies stay in Seoul, this will be the fourth time the old South Korean capital has changed hands since the Korean Reds stormed across the border last June.

Han River Crossed
Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgeway's Eighth Army headquarters said there would be a lapse of several hours before it would be possible to release more information on the Seoul situation.

U. S. 25th Division troops east of the city had crossed the Han one week ago and driven 10 miles northward against steadily weakening Communist opposition. These forces already were north-east of the city.

Elsewhere the Reds Wednesday fought rear-guard delaying actions on the east-central front but continued their mysterious withdrawal in other sectors.

Operations of the Eighth U. S. Army forces were cloaked by a

Democrats Defeat
Efforts To Block
RFC Reorganization

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Truman Democrats, rallying support from the southern wing of the party, turned back in the House today a Republican effort to block an RFC reorganization.

A roll call brought 201 votes to disapprove the reorganization proposal submitted by President Truman and 196 for the plan. But the issue came before the House in a way that required a constitutional majority—218 votes—to kill the proposal.

The president's plan is to replace the RFC's present five-man board of directors with a single administrator.

So a majority vote against reorganizing the agency indicated that later tests might pass proposed legislation to kill the RFC.

House Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex.) had used his influence to uphold the White House proposal. He also had come out personally against abolishing the RFC.

Secret Thefts
Easy, Says SpyWitness Tells About
A-Bomb Snooping

NEW YORK — (AP) — A confessed spy for Russia says it was easy to take American secrets from the Los Alamos, N. M., atomic bomb project during wartime.

This opinion of David Greenglass, 26, who as an army sergeant was stationed at Los Alamos in 1944.

Greenglass testified in federal court at the trial of his sister, Mrs. Ethel Rosenberg, 33, her electrical engineer husband, Julius, 33, and radar expert Morton Sobell, 33.

The Rosenbergs and Sobell are charged with conspiring to spy for Russia in wartime—an offense for which they could be sentenced to death.

Greenglass has confessed to taking secrets from Los Alamos and giving them to a Soviet spy ring. He now is awaiting sentence on a guilty plea.

Often smiling, Greenglass told Federal Judge Irving R. Kaufman and a jury that he obtained information at Los Alamos just by wandering around the super-secret project and asking seemingly innocuous questions.

Confessions Of Two Youths On Record In Kalamazoo Strangling

KALAMAZOO — (AP) — The state had in the record today six statements purporting to show that two farm youths took full blame for the rape slaying of a Western Michigan college coed.

The sixth statement was read yesterday at the trial of Valorous (Bud) Matthews, 22, and Raymond Lee Olson, 22, accused of the murder of pretty 19-year-old Carolyn Drown last Nov. 26.

The statement, attributed to Matthews, was admitted by Circuit Judge Lucien Sweet over strenuous defense objections. All the purported confessions have been repudiated by the defendants.

The statement was the third from Matthews that has been read to the jury. Previously, three statements, described as confessions from Olson, were read to the jury.

European AreaViolent Explosion
Proves Mystery

LONDON — (AP) — Mysterious earth convulsion startled part of the European continent today while along the coastlines fierce gales tied up shipping and inflicted widespread damage.

The earth tremor—some quarters said it could have been caused by an explosion of atomic proportions—was felt in Germany, Holland and parts of Belgium.

The earth rumbled and shook for about six seconds. Shudders of diminishing violence continued to be recorded in Stuttgart for 15 minutes. The quake was accompanied by a great wind blast which rattled windows and shook buildings. No extensive damage was reported anywhere.

Seismologists, the scientists who study earth movements, were unable to locate the center of the shock. One said it was either in the Eifel mountains of West Germany or in Soviet occupied Thuringia.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Threatened with perjury if he didn't answer, Gambler Frank Costello today told Senate crime probes he has about $40,000 to $50,000 in his strongbox at home.

Sen. Herbert R. O'Connor (D-Md.), who issued the ultimatum, told the reputed underworld leader to "be extremely careful" in answering the question.

When Costello hesitated, Sen. Charles Tobey (R-H) interrupted to suggest that a policeman be sent to Costello's home "to open that box."

Two Teachers Get Contracts

Board Considers New Grade School Site

The Escanaba board of education in regular meeting last night approved 1951-52 contracts for two new teachers and considered other items of business, including acquisition from the state of a possible site for a new grade school.

Contracts were approved for Miss Caryl Hulsizer of Ingalls, Menominee county and Miss Bette Mark, Marquette, who will graduate in June from Northern Michigan College of Education, Marquette. They will teach here in the grades.

Informal agreement was given a proposal to purchase or otherwise acquire from the state conservation department and from private owners an eight-acre area east of the Escanaba Golf club course in an undeveloped section at South 14th street and 14th avenue. The area, in two parcels totaling about three blocks, could be acquired for approximately $2,000.

The board considers the site well located for a prospective grade school in connection with a long-range program of city school development.

Other matters before the board included reports from Supt. John A. Lemmer, presented by George Ruwicz, assistant superintendent, in the absence of Supt. Lemmer, who could not be present because of illness. The board was advised that Supt. Lemmer is recovering at home from a severe cold.

The superintendent was authorized to advertise for bids for materials to construct concrete block toilet rooms beneath the new grandstand at the athletic field.

L. J. Shaw and R. C. Shaw of the faculty were authorized by the board to attend a state meeting in Industrial Arts Education to be held in Lansing.

Assistant Supt. Ruwicz reported to the board the recent visit to Escanaba by Dr. Leonard V. Koss and recommendations for a community college; and that work has been completed on an oral-deaf room in the basement of the Franklin school.

Welfare State Destroys Enterprise, Says Korb

Unless we stem the tide which is sweeping this nation into a socialistic-welfare state, American enterprise, as we know it, will soon be a thing of the past, Rotarians of four cities, Escanaba, Manistique, Munising and Gladstone were told by T. W. Korb, general counsel and assistant secretary of the Harnischfeger corporation, last evening at a joint meeting held in the clubhouse at Nahma.

Speaking on the topic Economic Horizons, the speaker added: What can business look forward to in the future? What about the young enterpriser? What is in store for him? What trials and tribulations must be overcome, and how can they be overcome?

Korb said he had been brought up on old fashioned precepts: save your money for investment; be honest, sincere, and conscientious in dealings with others; work hard and keep your goal in mind; be self-reliant; assume responsibility; learn from error and practice the Golden Rule. By diligent application of such rules one could always attain the "horizon of contentment" and the knowledge of having performed a service to society.

Wards of Government

Today, the horizon is lost and we are wandering in a haze—a deep fog of socialism.

The speaker said we are dodging responsibility, shoving it onto the federal government and its bureaucrats. The aged, the handicapped, the victims of disaster are shoved onto the government, become wards of the government, and following in close file are the lazy, the shiftless, the malcontents, the farmer, the laborer and the businessman. Each with arms extended, palms upward, for a hand-out.

Senator Styles Bridges was quoted by Mr. Korb as saying "The federal government sends out 19 million checks each month. Add to that another six million from states and municipalities, and then tell me how many people are feeding at the public trough."

In Washington, in Congress, in various bureaus, politicians are figuring out more ways to spend money or give away money. Crusading for the Welfare State, a state which makes a cult of dependency or pauperism and in which the attitude of the victims is: "I've got it coming to me."

Flow of "Benefits"

The insidious thing about pauperism in this sense is that it springs from motives which on the surface seem highly humanitarian. But once the principle is established, it grows on what it feeds on. The support of paupers becomes a major responsibility of the state. Politicians are quick to see the potentialities of their dependents as voters, who, in the immortal words of the later Gov. Alfred E. Smith "Will Not Shoot Santa Claus."

Pauperism, said Korb, becomes a fixed concept, no longer a stigma, as millions of prideless citizens rush to claim their share of gifts from a seemingly inexhaustible Christmas tree.

On one side we have calculating politicians intent on perpetuating themselves in office. On the other side are the masses of the new pauper class who will continue their so-called benefactors in office as long as the benefits continue to flow in an endless stream.

And in the middle, paying the bills, is the capitalistic, regimented mass production form of economy that is so enthusiastically damned and exoriated by the politicians, planners and social workers who are simultaneously exploiting it for their own selfish ends.

Farther In The Red

The apathy with which millions of wage earners, small investors, and small businesses share this tax burden, is puzzling, said the speaker. They docilely accept the added load placed upon them. The worker is paying for all of the cost of the very thing that will destroy him.

Social security now covers about 46 million persons and the cost of old age and survivors benefits is expected to exceed $10 billion annually. Overall cost of social security, pensions, health and welfare programs will cost from 30 to 40 billion dollars annually in the next few decades, it is estimated.

And still today in the period of our highest income we are going further into the red at a rate of $5 billion annually. And the government plans to spend $75 billion this fiscal year.

Korb declared the economic horizon was obscured, portended a storm which would level us to the morass of begging pauperism, similar to Britain, but with no one left to whom we can turn.

We are daily trading our liberty and freedom for illusory promises that have failed in Germany under Hitler, in Russia under Stalin, in Italy under Mussolini and will fail in Britain under socialism.

Must Deny Socialism

The Pilgrims tried socialism and it failed, the speaker said. And after it had been abandoned and every man, even the lazy, worked and could keep what he produced except for a bit for the cost of government, a great nation was conceived.

A nation, said Korb, that with 6 per cent of the land area and 7 per cent of the world's population possesses 45 per cent of the world's wealth, 76 per cent of the world's automobiles, 58 per cent of the telephones and 44 per cent of the radios. And this youngest of the world's leading nations surpasses in number and quality all others in schools, hospitals, libraries, railroad, bridge, dams and huge industries.

The success of business, the preservation of opportunity, the guarantee of continued greatness in the United States, and the right to be let alone, is in direct ratio to the success we achieve in combating and disavowing Socialism or any form of Collectivism, the speaker declared.

The Federal Government today is operating outside the orbit prescribed by the Constitution, said Korb and the Socialistic-Welfare State is only a prelude to the Totalitarianism that has brought desolation to the world of our day.

Transition Period

Korb said he was old-fashioned enough to believe we do not have rights because we have government; on the contrary, we have government because we have rights.

Our system of government means: first the people, then the small units of government, next the states, then the federal government.

We are faced with a crisis. The Welfare state is a successor to Capitalism in the transition to Socialism and then Communism.

Unless we stem and turn the tide, American enterprise, as we know it, will soon be a thing of the past, Korb concluded.

Wallace C. Cameron, president of the host club, Gladstone, presided at the gathering which was attended by 70 Rotarians and guests. Atty. Dennis McGinn, Escanaba, served ably as toastmaster. A group of songs by an octet from the Escanaba Barber Shop chorus composed of Donald Grenfell, Dick Schmeltzer, Ollie Thatcher, Noble Swenson, Lowell Sundstrom, Soren Johnson, Francis Provencher and Harold Valentine was well received.

There were no children born in the month of January before the year 700 B. C. The month of January did not exist until that time.

Ask Delay In Bay Ice Test

Fishermen Appeal To C. G. Commander

Escanaba commercial fishermen today appealed to U. S. Coast Guard headquarters at Cleveland to hold back ice testing operations in Little Bay de Noc as long as possible so that fishing operations can continue.

The first tentatively indicated date for arrival of an ore carrier at Escanaba was March 24, but no definite word has since been received.

The Coast Guard reported a few days ago that ice testing by the cutter Mackinac had been scheduled for about Saturday, March 17, a week ahead of the first indicated ore boat.

Green bay ice outside of the northern section is reported as breaking up, with water stretches visible in several places and ice moving out into Lake Michigan at Washington Island.

Commercial fishermen here are working on ice 14 to 20 inches in thickness. Operations could continue until the arrival of the icebreaker.

Definite information concerning the arrival of the icebreaker is expected tomorrow or Friday. The fishermen have been assured they will be given ample notice to permit them to remove their nets.

Wolverines Table Walleye Discussion, Plan Wildlife Week

The Wolverine Conservation association ran into a time consuming discussion of proposed walleye legislation at a meeting last night and finally tabled the matter. Other action at the meeting concerned the local observance of National Wildlife week, March 25 to 31.

Walter O'Brien, a director of the Walleye Protective association, presented an explanation of the legislation embodied in the Erlandson bill now before the legislature and backed by the Walleye group. Speaking on various aspects of the question were Pete Ethier, Ralph O'Laughlin and the following commercial fishermen, George E. Hanson, John Ferrari and Walter Olson.

National Wildlife week will be marked here by a meeting of the Wolverine Conservation club on Tuesday March 27 and a public meeting on March 28 that will feature outdoor movies.

Wells Teachers Given More Pay

Adjust Salaries To Cost Of Living

A cost of living adjustment in the salaries of Wells township school employees was approved by the board of education at a regular meeting last night.

The board voted to grant a $135.00 adjustment in salary to all full time employees with a pro rata adjustment to part time employees. The amounts are to be paid in separate checks as soon as possible.

The amount of this increase was based on an anticipated surplus in current school year revenue above last year. Seventy per cent of this increase, or approximately the same proportion that the total school employees salaries are to the operating budget, was used in determining the amount to be used.

The board also approved a five day cumulative to 15 days sick leave policy for the coming year.

Bus Drivers Hold Safety School Here

Emphasizing that a courteous driver is a safe driver, two Minneapolis officials for Northland Greyhound bus lines yesterday conducted an all-day traffic safety school for drivers operating buses out of Escanaba.

The school here was conducted by Obra Clerc, Greyhound traffic safety director, and E. J. Riordan, mechanical instructor for the bus line. Similar safety meetings have been held in Duluth and Hibbing, Minn., recently. From here the safety directors go to Wisconsin bus terminals to conduct similar classes.

Reaction time when stopping buses, and the distances required to stop at varying speeds were stressed in the safety talks here yesterday. Accidents are analyzed in these classes to determine cause and the prevention of similar accidents. Also brought out at the meeting is the fact that all bus schedules are secondary to safety, and that courtesy on the road is paramount.

New brake appliances, a new heating system and other new mechanical equipment on buses were explained here yesterday with the aid of scale models of the devices.

The safety meeting here con-

Garden Township First To Report In RC Fund Drive

Garden township is the first county unit to report progress in the Red Cross fund drive and to date has contributed $102.25.

The township, under chairmanship of Joseph DesRochers is about half completed in its solicitations. The quota for Garden is $240.

Goal in the Delta County Red Cross drive is $15,000. More is needed this year because of increased demands due to the national emergency and because of increased operating costs.

Other chairmen in the county have not reported donations to date. About $1,000 has been turned in thus far.

Offer Help With Intangibles Tax Returns March 22

The Michigan department of revenue will have a representative at Escanaba city hall from 1 to 5 p. m. on March 22 to assist taxpayers in the preparation due not later than March 31.

Intangible personal property subject to the tax includes all of their intangibles tax returns mortgages, land contracts, bank accounts, cash, postal savings accounts, accounts and notes receivable, corporate stocks, corporate bonds and other similar types of property. However, all Unit States bonds, including War Bonds, are exempt from the tax, and the tax on deposits in Michigan banks and building and loan associations, as well as stocks in Michigan banks, will be paid to the Department of Revenue directly by the banks or building and loan associations.

Under the present law as amended by the legislature in 1945, all corporate stocks are 100 per cent taxable including Michigan Corporations.

The department has issued a warning to all owners of property, such as is outlined above, to file the necessary return forms prior to March 31. The Revenue Department is constantly engaged in checking stockholders' lists, mortgage records, income tax returns and other data for the purpose of discovering evasions of the Intangible Tax Act. Failure to file a return when a tax is due subjects the taxpayer to severe penalties.

Those desiring this advice or assistance are requested to bring with them full information concerning their holdings, including the face or par value, and income received therefrom during the year, and copy of the previous year's return filed with the department.

Eisenhower Leaves No Room For Doubt On Use of Atomic Bombs

BEFORE he went overseas last month, General Eisenhower outlined to the Senate armed services and foreign relations committees in secret session his views on the use of atomic bombs in warfare. The general's statements made at that time have just been made public. They reflect the intelligent thinking of the man who will direct the defense of Western Europe if the Russians should decide to make another grab.

Eisenhower said that he believes in using "what we have" in defending ourselves. That includes the atomic bomb, he made it clear. The main factor in any consideration of the use of the A-bomb, General Ike said, is whether or not it will be advantageous to us.

He explained that if he felt the material destruction to be caused by an atomic bomb was not equal to some moral or great reaction otherwise to the use of the bomb, he would abstain from its use. However, if he believed there would be a net gain in its use, he would not hesitate to employ it against the enemy.

There are many people in this country who are opposed to the use of atomic bombs by the United States, regardless of circumstances. Fortunately, the American people as a whole do not accept this theory. If they did, they would demand the abandonment of our atomic bomb plants. And if this happened, it would be a direct invitation to Russia to move aggressively across Europe.

Western European military officials are certain that Russia has not given a signal to put her armies on the march in Europe only because Russia is fearful of the atomic bomb. It would be foolhardy for us to offer the Kremlin any hope that we would hesitate to use our superiority in A-bombs if the occasion requires it.

Gen. Eisenhower has said that he would not hesitate to use atomic weapons if he felt that their use would provide an advantage for the western powers. There is no reason for anyone, including the Russians, to doubt his meaning.

Peace With Japan Is Not Far Off

JOHN FOSTER DULLES has just given his country and the world a superb demonstration of capable diplomacy at work.

With very little fanfare, he went out to the Far East to talk about a Japanese peace treaty, not only affecting Japan and the U. S. but Australia, New Zealand and the Philippines.

When he came back, he brought the draft of a peace document acceptable in its basic terms to the United States, Japan and our principal Pacific Allies. In other words, he has achieved the biggest single forward step toward a treaty since World War II ended.

This job was accomplished by Dulles and whatever staff he may have used. There were no widely heralded peace conferences in gilded government halls. There was no protracted wrangling over terms.

If the draft now on the table can be put into final form without losing any of the excellent harmony which exists among the prospective signatory nations, then before too many months have passed we should be formally at peace with Japan.

It is notable that this country and the others involved propose to move toward a final settlement in the same way they have proposed thus far: using normal diplomatic channels. Once again, therefore, the too often fruitless big conference will be avoided.

Russia, of course, has no part in these negotiations. The Kremlin has blocked every attempt to attain a Japanese settlement. If it were now invited to participate, it would simply sabotage the discussions by raising impossible demands.

East-West relations in Asia have deteriorated too much for the Soviet Union even to be considered. The only issue in the Orient is how to resist marauding communism, not how to negotiate with it.

That fact is reflected in the terms we and the Japanese are agreed to in the treaty draft brought back by Dulles. Of their own will, the Japs wish to accord us bases for our armed forces in the Japanese islands. This means that Japan is definitely aligned on the side of the West, indeed, considers itself virtually within the American orbit of defense.

It is heartening to find this positive, hopeful element in an area so confused and generally discouraging as the Far East. Japan's industrial might is a key factor there; wisely employed it can do much to help the whole of Southeast Asia. But in Communist hands it would be a strong lever pushing the region toward Red oblivion.

A formal treaty with Japan crystallizing this hopeful relationship is earnestly to be desired. For his crucial part in bringing such a treaty nearer reality, Dulles deserves the warm thanks of every American and every free man throughout the globe.

Alger Hiss Nears His Prison Term

FOURTEEN months have elapsed since Alger Hiss was convicted of perjury by a federal jury. He was sentenced to serve five years in prison because he was found guilty of lying to a federal grand jury when he denied that he had given secret documents to Whittaker Chambers, a confessed courier for a pre-war Communist spy ring.

Hiss escaped a charge of treason only because of the statute of limitations. The perjury conviction was in a sense a conviction of treason. He has been free on bond pending the outcome of his appeal.

Monday the supreme court denied Hiss's request to review his case, closing virtually the last avenue for his escape from punishment. He could still file a request for the court to reconsider, but it is unlikely that it would be granted. Or he might seek executive clemency but here again the prospects for success are bleak, indeed.

Alger Hiss has been granted every privilege of American justice, which is as it should be. Now the time is at hand for him to pay the penalty of his crime.

The Soviet Union, for whom Hiss was working while engaged as a high official of the American government, does not possess these standards of justice and individual rights. In Russia, the head of Alger Hiss would have been lopped off many months ago—and there would be no statute of limitations to intervene.

Moral Decline Evident In Officials' Attitude

FROM the moment the RFC disclosures began hitting the headlines, the words "illegal" and "improper" have enjoyed the currency of popular songs.

White House attaches, RFC officials, senators, these and others have time and again defended the exercise of pressure and influence on the ground that what they did was not illegal. Senator Fulbright of Arkansas, pursuing the inquiry, has often insisted that while this might be so, their actions were nevertheless improper.

Faced with this moral gauge, the principals in the RFC story have then usually gone on to assert that they have done nothing improper, either.

There is no need here to discuss the issue of illegality. If any be demonstrated, it is a matter for the courts and that's that. What is of much graver concern to the nation is the strange idea so many of our public officials seem to have of what is proper and what is improper.

An examiner for RFC sees no harm in accepting free hospitality from a Florida hotel owner who has won an RFC loan. Senator Murray, Montana Democrat, says it's quite "routine" for lawmakers to plug loans for applicants who happen to be constituents, even when a senator's son is the applicant's lawyer.

White House personnel feel utterly free about accepting favors of all kinds, as well as dispensing them. Maj.-Gen. Harry Vaughan, President Truman's military aide, doesn't have a single qualm whether he's taking in deep freezers or getting a special law pushed through Congress to allow entry from Australia of a woman acquaintance he wants as secretary.

In all these instances, the principals have one standard reply: "Is there anything wrong in that?"

That they even find it necessary to ask the question tells us how insensible many public men have become to any lofty code of propriety in official life. By any reasonable measure, no man who occupies a position of responsibility in government ought either to accept or grant special favors to anyone.

There was a time when such an elementary ethical standard was universally revered and widely observed. In the Washington of 1951, it appears as outmoded as celluloid collars and knee-length bathing suits.

That Number

Numbers always play a major part in life from day to day, and we see them very often as we go our hurried way. On our clocks and on our calendars they measure out the time, and they mark the price of merchandise from dollars to a dime. And it's there we find a number destined ever to survive, for you seldom see a price that doesn't end in ninety-five.

Now there doubtless is a reason, when the goods they advertise that the price must end in ninety-five to make it seem a prize. But it works because a dame will go to buy herself a dress, and displaying it at home will be inclined to effervesce, that her bargain has most everything for which a girl could wish, and it cost but fourteen ninety-five instead of fifteen fish.

We may think it would be easier to try our shopping luck, it they'd just forget the ninety-five and take the whole damn buck. But it doesn't seem to matter what a merchant has to sell, be it pants or shoes or radios or just a bagatelle, it's an odds-on bet that if the price is there for all to see, it has got to end in ninety-five—for cash, not C.O.D.

Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

ROME—The most important thing that every American is entitled to know about Marshall plan aid to Europe is whether it is a temporary shot-in-arm which will have to be repeated every so often to keep the patient alive or whether it will really put Europe back on its feet. In brief, the question is will communism take over shortly after we pull the Marshall plan props out from under Europe?

Italy may be a good laboratory in which to answer this question, partly because we have poured American money into Italy ever since the end of World War II, partly because the Italian people are reasonably well disposed toward the United States and partly because Communism is taking a licking here for which the Marshall plan is to a considerable degree responsible.

Basically the question of whether Italy or any other Marshall plan country can carry on after we leave boils down to whether they can successfully institute internal reforms sufficient to combat communism, balance their budgets and muster the courage to tax. In Italy, this entire question has been the subject of a vitally important dispute between the De Gasperi government and ECA Administrator Leon Dayton, with U. S. Ambassador James Dunn siding with the Italian government against his fellow American. It is one of the most significant backstage discussions anywhere in Europe today.

FEW INCOME TAXES

What most Americans don't realize is that few European countries except England and the Scandinavian countries ever impose anything approaching our income tax on their people. Since the war most European countries simply have been balancing their budgets with Marshall plan funds and other forms of American aid. This chiefly benefits the aristocracy of Italy and 500 families of France who for years have paid almost no taxes.

Italian taxes, for instance, are geared to hit the small farmer and the worker—not the big landowner or the big industrialist. When the Italian farmer transports eggs into the Rome market, he's stopped on the outskirts of the city and forced to pay a tax of about 20 per cent on his produce. When he carries his wine or his olive oil or anything else into the city or across the county line he pays a tax.

On bread, for instance, eight different taxes must be paid. The farmer pays a tax on his wheat seed, and another tax on his land when the wheat is planted. Then he pays a harvest tax plus another 3 per cent when the wheat is sold to the government. Another 3 per cent tax is paid when the government sells the wheat to the wholesaler, then, plus those, there is an additional 3 per cent tax when it is sold to the baker. Finally there is a millers' tax and a retailers' tax making a total of eight different taxes on one loaf of bread. All these taxes hit the farmer, the workman and the housewife by boosting their cost of living and also, of course, this tax system plays right into the hands of the Communists.

Meanwhile, there is no tax on caviar and the Roman aristocracy and the Milan factory owners laugh at the idea of paying any income tax. They not only do not declare their incomes but no one in the higher bracket ever goes to jail for tax evasion. In high society here it just isn't done.

RICH MILK MARSHALL AID

This same society of duchesses and countesses which so long has basked in the favor of the American embassy proceeded to welcome Marshall plan aid as manna from heaven and to milk it for their own special benefit. The milking was both pleasant and profitable. But soon American officials and the Italian people woke up and found that Marshall money was being spent to build bathrooms for senators, to rebuild the Fascist headquarters at the Palazzo Braschi and to subsidize the swankiest new night club in all Rome, the Open Gate Club.

The latter piece of baksheesh was maneuvered by one of Rome's social ladies for the avowed purpose of helping struggling American tourists in Italy. However, when the velvet curtains were pulled aside on opening night a rendezvous calculated to impress Anthony and Cleopatra was revealed, and any Iowa schoolteacher who might have sought tourist information here could never have got in without credentials from the social register.

Take My Word For It . . . Frank Colby Jr.

DO YOU MAKE THESE COMMON ERRORS?

Avoid: "After having written the letter, I mailed it special delivery." The location "after having" is redundant. Say: Having written the letter; or: after writing the letter.

Avoid: "I shall remain in the city for the balance of the year." The word "balance" is a bookkeeper's term. Better say: . . . for the remainder of the year.

Avoid: "They are both alike." Nonsense. Correct: They are alike.

Avoid: "He has great capacity as a speaker." Capacity is "the power to receive and retain," as the capacity of learning. Better say: He has great ability as a speaker.

Avoid: "He had no less than three decorations." We should not use "less" in qualifying that which can be numbered (counted). Correct: He had no fewer than three decorations. She has fewer (not "less") responsibilities than I.

Avoid: "It is liable to rain today." Liable expresses a liability, usually of an unpleasant nature. Improved: It is likely to rain today. If you speed, you are liable to arrest.

Avoid: "He liked six dollars of having enough money to buy the bond." Like for lack is dialectal in the extreme. Better say: He lacked six dollars.

Avoid: "Try and see me tomorrow." No. One tries to do something. Correct: Try to see me tomorrow; try to remember; try to do better.

OLD DOBBIN isn't ready to call it quits; not by a long shot, and Uncle Sam is doing a lot of research work to make all breeds better, more efficient for a wide array of jobs. Top left, checking heartbeat after a run, part of the careful testing on a federal experimental farm. Top

Don't Count Old Dobbin Out, He's Still Very Much On Job

By HERBERT HOLLANDER

The idea that the horse has been put finally and permanently into the discard by this mechanical age isn't so at all.

As a matter of fact the most recent check-up—which you might call a Gallop Poll without being guilty of too far-fetched a pun—shows that there still are more than 8,250,000 horses in the United States. And don't forget the nearly 3,250,000 mules, too.

Of course, it is true that there has been a steady decline in the Old Dobbin's numbers during the past forty years. Surprisingly, though, the peak of the horse population didn't come in the early horse-and-buggy days but around 1918, when it hit an all-time high of 21,000,000.

Breeds Improved

Experts believe that there is going to be a leveling off in the decline because, despite widespread opinion to the contrary, the future for man's equine friend is surprisingly bright. In fact, it's probable that more is being done now than ever before to improve the various breeds of horses, for use on the farms, for sports, and for many specialized uses in both peace and war.

For example, on the Mexican border U. S. inspectors use horses constantly over terrain which even a jeep can't navigate. On ranches the horse is still unexcelled for round-up purposes. Horse-drawn artillery still is not entirely out of the military picture. A big farm in Vermont operated by the U. S. Department of Agriculture is devoted almost entirely to improving the Morgan horse, one of the few breeds developed in the United States; and the tests made there are being applied with equal usefulness to other types.

All of which is the more amazing when one considers that millions of city-bred youngsters actually never even have seen a horse except in pictures; never have stood in the doorway of a blacksmith's shop, fascinated by the showers of sparks and the steady clang, clang of the smithy's hammer on the anvil; never have known the variegated and unforgettable odors of Brown's Livery Stable; never have joyously chanced upon a thrown horse-shoe; never have made a horse-shoe ring; never have jogged down city boulevard or country lane in a surrey with fringe on top; never, in fact, have savored any of the many joys associated with man's use of this ever-faithful friend.

There has been a great increase in the use of horses in cities for pleasure purposes. This is best evidenced by the fact that within recent years virtually every city has largely extended its mileage of bridle paths in response to emphatic demands from an ever-larger group who have learned the invigorating delights of horseback riding. Also, the legalization of horse racing in various sections has stimulated greatly the breeding of horses for that purpose.

Used on Milk Routes

Even before World War II brought gas and tire rationing and halted the making of new cars it was not true that horses had disappeared from commercial use. But even now it is likely that they will continue to be used extensively on milk routes, for example. One important reason is that no one yet has invented an automobile that knows and follows the route of its own accord.

One reason for discontinuance of use of horsedrawn commercial vehicles by truckers who still are favorable to Old Dobbin on the grounds of economy is the difficulty experienced in getting trained teamsters. Most of the teamsters of today are older men who learned their exacting business years ago. Younger men simply have not wanted to know how to handle horses.

Nevertheless the horse now is making the most determined bid in years for continued and widespread use both in cities and on the farms. And in this he is being assisted by the breeders and by the Federal Government, which cooperates with them.

There are now models in horses today just as there are now models in motor cars.

The huge draft horses of yesterday are gradually being streamlined; nowadays they are being bred lighter, stronger, sounder, and more efficient. The number of pure bred animals has increased tremendously, too. Each year more and more attention is being paid to genealogy. Better horses are the result.

Works on Small Farms

Especially on the smaller farms the horse has been well able to stem the motor tide. This is because the horse is wonderfully flexible and can be used in multiple hitched, from two to as high as 12 or 14; because he requires no time out for breakage, overhauling, or the acquisition of spare parts; because he is self-replacing; because he consumes the products he helps raise; and because he returns much-needed fertility to the soil.

Man has a feeling for a horse which he has for no other animal save, perhaps, the dog. Almost everybody loves horses. There is scarcely an individual, young or old, who does not envy those fortunate enough to own horses or to ride them regularly. Skeptics may smile, but it's really true that many who go to race tracks rarely place a bet. Over and over one will hear people say:

"I just went to see them run. There's no other thrill like seeing a beautiful horse in action."

Five Pleasure Breeds

There are five leading breeds of pleasure horses in the United States. They are the Thoroughbred, Standardbred, American Saddle Horse, Morgan, and Arabian. There are, too, such prominent pleasure and utility stock as the Cleveland Bays, Tennessee Walking Horses, and American Quarter Horses. The four leading draft breeds are Percheron—he's the outstanding farm horse in point of numbers—the Clydesdale, Belgian, and Shire. The Clydesdales, by the way, are the "brewer's big horses," and are truly magnificent specimens. A fifth draft breed is the handsome chestnut colored Suffolk.

It is the draft horses that are being streamlined most today. They are producing them lighter than previously and even more efficient, so they can pull modern farm machinery faster and better.

Also, the United States Army, through the Remount Service of its Quartermaster Corps, has been working for many years, with the aid of private breeders, to produce better horses of the riding and artillery type. These animals are sired principally by Thoroughbred stallions of the best breeding and conformation.

The increased interest in careful breeding is shown by the rising prices paid for the finest stock. For example, a syndicate of American sportsmen some years ago paid over $200,000 for Blenheim II, an English horse (Thoroughbred) imported into this country for breeding purposes. Prices up to $75,000 for great horses, to be used at stud, are not unusual.

Developed in Arabia

The oldest breed of horse generally recognized now, and held to be the fountainhead of all other light breeds, was developed in the desert country of Arabia, from which it derives its name. Needing an animal that would carry him swiftly and safely over long stretches of sandy soil and at the same time withstand the lack of feed and water to a remarkable degree, the Arab developed a type of horse long noted for its activity, endurance, docility, and handsome appearance.

The Arabian, while primarily developed as a saddle horse and ridden by the Arabs at a canter, is easily broken to make a safe although not fast driver.

When one speaks of a "race horse" one usually means a horse of the Thoroughbred breed. Three Arabian stallions are credited with having laid the foundation for the breed in England. They were the Byerly Turk, 1689, the Darley Arabian, 1706, and the Godolphin Barb, 1724. And they produced three famous racing families; namely, Harod, Eclipse, and Matchem, respectively.

The Thoroughbred has many features of the Arabian, most notable of which is the general refinement of appearance. As a running race horse the Thoroughbred is generally regarded to be without a peer.

Wider interest in trotting races, as shown by the construction of several new tracks in various parts of the country, and plans for more, give another flip to the continuing interest in horses and in breed improvement.

But whether he's a farm work-horse or a sleek, speedy scion of the tracks, it's plain that the horse is still very much a part of the American scene.

Good Evening . . .

THE GOVERNOR'S LETTER — An eighth birthday anniversary is important. For Emily DeRouin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil DeRouin of A Street, Wells, it was doubly noteworthy the morning of Feb. 23. The radio announced that it was also the birth date of Gov. G. Mennen Williams.

Emily wrote to him, wishing him a happy birthday. In reply she received the following letter:

Dear Emily:

Thank you very much for your kindness in sending me greetings on my birthday. I am especially happy to know that we celebrated our birthdays on the same day and I sincerely hope your eighth birthday was most happy. With every good wish.

Sincerely,

G. Mennen Williams, Governor.

Note: Gov. Williams was 40 on the day Emily was eight. He had a few friends in for dinner that evening. So did Emily—ten of her girl friends for a party supper.

DARTS AND CHECKERS—Charlie Robinson, one of Escanaba's ace chess players, a whizz at darts, and a former championship league bowler, stopped in the other day to report on the dartboard tournament then in progress.

This resulted in a conversation concerning games, concluding with Charlie's observation that there is more to checkers than most people realize. To illustrate he told of the time he lived in Niagara, Wis., and a visitor challenged Charlie, then checker champion of the town, to a game.

It turned out the visitor had received his experience in the London Checker Club playing such experts as World Champion Wyley. Charlie was roundly beaten and advised to buy a book and study the game. This he did and in later years held his own with some of the better players in any community in which he lived.

SLOW BUT SURE—Talk of checkers reminded us of the story of the two Washington Island men who operated (in the old days) a passenger and freight boat between the Island and Escanaba.

When they left the island they fixed the course and brought out the checker board and settled down to a game. Observers said the first move in the contest was made as the boat passed Boyer's Bluff at the north end of the Island; the second move was made when they reached Minneapolis Shoal, about halfway to Escanaba; and the third when they reached the harbor here.

Between times they sat and pondered the next move. The story is told that once the lashing on the tiller slipped and the boat lurched for three hours in the middle of the bay before either checker player noticed it.

EMERGENCY RESCUE—From an Escanaba friend of John Gafner comes a clipping from the Detroit Free Press, reporting an incident in connection with the recent state office building fire in Lansing.

"John Gafner, state property manager and superintendent of the capitol, received a frantic phone call from a female office worker at the height of the state office building fire," the story goes. "She begged permission to retrieve something important from her desk. 'I'll have to deny your request,' Gafner told her. 'but if it's terribly important a fireman might be able to reach it.' The lady breathed: 'Oh, it is important—my bottle of vitamin pills.' For all Gafner knows, they're still there."

John is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hans Gafner of 1519 Ludington street, Escanaba.

THE LAST TIME? — Tuesday night members of Rotary clubs of Gladstone, Escanaba and Munising held their fourth annual inter-club dinner meeting in the Nahma community club house.

Was it the last meeting of its kind at Nahma? That is possible because the Bay de Noquet company has announced it will close its mill next July after sawing its last log.

Is Nahma destined to become another Upper Peninsula ghost town? State-wide efforts are being made to interest another wood-working industry in locating there. Rotarians of the four U. P. communities might pool their community service know-how in a project to help extend Nahma's economic life.

REA Attacks Chapman, Original New Dealer

By MARQUIS CHILDS

WASHINGTON — Although it has received little publicity, a controversy is going on within the defense organization which has the same overtones of New Deal vs. private interests that marked the walkout by organized labor from the Wage Stabilization Board. The dispute involves the claims of public power as against private power in the face of shortages of vital materials.

The political potentialities are explosive, since lined up on the public power side are the rural electrical co-ops. They have important political friends in Capitol Hill, including influential southern Democrats who have already begun to put the heat on Secretary of Interior Oscar Chapman.

Survivor Of New Deal
It is ironic that Chapman should be the target of their resentment. He is one of the few survivors out of the Roosevelt New Deal in the Truman administration. But when authority over electric power development under the defense program was put in his hands it was certain that he would find himself in hot water.

Chapman felt obliged to name a private power man to head up his defense power because it was pointed out to him that about 14 billion dollars is invested in the private power industry as against two billions in public power. He named as administrator Clifford B. McManus, former president of the Georgia Power company and since 1949 of the Southern Power company serving areas in Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi and Florida.

A director of the Edison Electric Institute, he is one of the insiders in the industry.

The first major skirmish came when McManus ruled that there was a power shortage in the Pacific Northwest and that consequently no more defense industries could be located in that region. In the Northwest the great public power developments, Grand Coulee and Bonneville, have provided cheap power which has in turn attracted a whole new industrial complex.

Senator Morse Objected
In that rapidly growing area they saw McManus' ruling as a block to any further public power development. Senator Morse of Oregon, a Republican, and Senator Magnuson of Washington, a Democrat, came charging down to Chapman's office. So did Rep. Henry Jackson of Washington, a loyal Truman Democrat, along with many others.

The reaction was especially violent since the Northwest had fought the same fight earlier when it was considered inadvisable to put further defense installations there because of the danger of an attack by Russia from Siberia. They were determined there would be no stop put to the future development of their region.

But it was after the ruling on the farm co-ops that the roof fell in. The co-ops, with their powerful National Rural Electric Cooperative association, recognized that allocations of scarce materials would naturally cut deep into their expansion program. They were not prepared, however, for McManus' demand that all plans be submitted to him for approval or disapproval. This included work on rural lines and generating units already started.

Claude Wickard, head of the Rural Electrification administration, came up with a counter proposal. He suggested that a total allocation of materials be fixed by McManus for rural lines. Then out of that total REA would make individual allotments to projects around the country, thus using the available scarce materials at those points where, in Wickard's interpretation, they would contribute most to increasing farm production and consequently the nation's food supply.

Were Founding Table
In a showdown session between the two, McManus rejected this plan. He argued that in order to save materials he would have to keep the right to pass on individual applications. Wickard, an outspoken champion of the program to light up rural America, grew indignant. Before the conference ended both men were pounding the table.

The final decision will, of course, be up to Chapman. He has indicated that he will sustain McManus on the ground that if he turns a part of the program over to REA, he will then have to turn another and larger share over to the utilities for their private allocation. In that way, he believes,

Women Take Over Mendon, Mich., After Village Election

MENDON, Mich.—(AP)—The women—and should anybody be surprised?—are in control here.

The novelty, if any, is that this has to do with politics. In the village election a feminine ticket swept the boards. It wasn't even close for any office. There will be one lonesome male officeholder. He is incumbent city clerk Vern McClish. He wasn't opposed.

the whole program would get out of control. Chapman has said that at the same time he will ask McManus to name a deputy from the public power side.

It is doubtful whether this will satisfy the cooperators and the powerful political interests behind public power in the Northwest and elsewhere. Just as organized labor looks darkly on the corporation executive, suspecting him of wanting to use the emergency to curb or destroy unions, so do the public power advocates suspect the utilities of plotting to do them in. Here is still another example of how the defense emergency is cutting into the political area stacked out by the Truman fair deal.

Mrs. Helen Hickmott, former Kalamazoo college teacher, was elected village president. She won over Marvin Dalman, incumbent, by a vote of 77 to 43.

The women campaigned on a general platform that they could do a better job of running the village government than men.

A result was a rousing good vote turnout—a total of 120. This southwestern Michigan community has a population of 750.

"We'll do our best," said Mrs. Hickmott proudly after her victory. She and her husband run Mendon's biggest department store.

Escanaba Man Dies Of Burns

Thomas Burley Found Dead At Residence

Thomas M. Burley, 77, of 1218 Ludington street was found dead in his upstairs apartment yesterday afternoon by Escanaba police. The man died of second degree burns, and had been dead at least two days, Coroner O. S. Hult reports.

Police were summoned at 2 p. m., by Ellison Locksmith of 1218 Ludington street, who found Burley in the upstairs room. The aged man apparently died after his clothes caught fire when he was lighting a stove.

His shirt was burned off, his body was burned from the waist upwards and the back of his head was singed, where it had been resting on the door of the stove ash pit.

Officers found Burley lying on his side, slumped over, with his head resting on the stove. The room was cold when they found him.

The body was removed to Degnan funeral home, where services were conducted by Rev. Karl J. Hammar at 1:30 p. m., today. Burial was in Lakeview cemetery.

Burley, a woodsman, was born June 24, 1873 in Charlevoix, Mich. He had lived in Escanaba several years.

Survivors include a brother, George Burley of Escanaba, and several nieces and nephews. His wife preceded him in death.

Two Babies Scalded By Bath In Sink

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — (P) — A mother visiting friends in a downtown apartment noticed water dripping through the neighbor's ceiling.

The mother, Mrs. Lee Summar, rushed upstairs to her own apartment. There she found her nine-months-old son scalded to death and his older sister critically burned in a sink.

The children — Michael and Phyllis Lee, 21 months — had been playing with a toy boat as they took a bath in the double sink. Phyllis Lee apparently had turned on or had bumped against the hot water faucet. A hot water tank was empty. The sink and floor were flooded by scalding water.

The Way To Calvary

After his dark hour of agony in Gethsemane, Jesus took his last walk. "Rise, let us go: behold, he that will betray me is at hand." While He was yet speaking, Judas approached with a crowd armed with swords and staves, sent by the chief priests and elders.

Judas had arranged a signal whereby they would know Jesus—He would be the one Judas would kiss. The betrayer advanced, greeted Jesus with "Hail, Master!" and kissed Him.

The crowd laid hands on Jesus. Peter, enraged, cut off an ear of one of the high priest's servants. The Master healed the ear and uttered the warning, "All they that take the sword shall perish by the sword."

Huge Federal Loan To U. P. Copper Mine Expected By April 1

By JOE HALL

AP Special Washington Service
WASHINGTON—(P)—A government decision on a multi-million dollar loan for the White Pine Copper mine project in northern Michigan is due by April 1.

Backers of the project here remain confident the loan will be forthcoming, although the decision has been delayed longer than originally planned.

James Boyd, head of the defense minerals administration which must investigate and certify the project for a loan, has not changed his position of two months ago that the money will be forthcoming.

William H. Harrison, defense production administrator, is understood to have interested himself in the proposal. His agency is bearing the brunt of the cries for scarce metals and other materials.

Won't Get Maximum
There are indications, though, that the Copper Range Mining Co. may not get the maximum loan of $100,000,000 which it asked.

The minerals administration has suggested a figure of $62,000,000 and Copper Range reportedly has indicated a willingness to compromise.

The full $100,000,000 loan would be necessary to get the top production out of the mine. This is estimated at 75,000 tons of copper metal in a year, which would be more than 10 per cent of the total domestic U. S. production in recent years.

Boyd's agency has made an intensive study of the project. Gov-

National Forest Timber For Sale

The advertisement of National Forest Timber in Section 18, T. 45 N., R. 17 W., Munising Ranger District, Hiawatha National Forest, which appeared in the March 3 issue of this paper is amended to read as follows:

Sealed bids will be received by the Forest Supervisor, Escanaba, Michigan, up to 2:00 P.M., E.S.T., April 13, 1951.

Bids in excess of maximum permissible rates established in conformity with ceiling price regulations will be reduced to such maximum permissible rates. Such permissible rates will be announced as soon as determined and in event it is not possible to make such determinations before bidding date, such date will be postponed.

with the defense minerals administration and the biggest involving copper.

So far the administration has not certified a single loan since its creation last fall.

Copper Range has not been idle while the government decision has been awaited.

It has obtained a site at the city of Ontonagon for the steam power plant with which it plans to supply the mine and mills. It also has laid out the townsite for the community which it expects to build at the mine.

The company is understood to have spent at least $2,000,000 so far on the project, including experimentation with the new mining techniques required.

Pushed By Bennett
Copper Range officials have said that a favorable government decision by April 1 would permit them to take advantage of the construction season this year.

Rep. Bennett (R-Mich.), who has been active in pushing the project here, believes it will bring long-term benefits to the Upper Peninsula as well as help the nation meet its immediate copper shortage.

He has been advised there are enough copper reserves there to keep the mine going 50 years. Employment would be provided for at least 1,300 persons if the White Pine produces at maximum capacity.

"It's inconceivable that this project will not be approved considering that it is sponsored by a soundly organized, successful company and considering the critical need for all the copper we can get," Bennett told a reporter.

"After all, it would be a loan, not a grant. There might be small risk involved but the government would have an excellent chance of getting all its money back."

Munising News

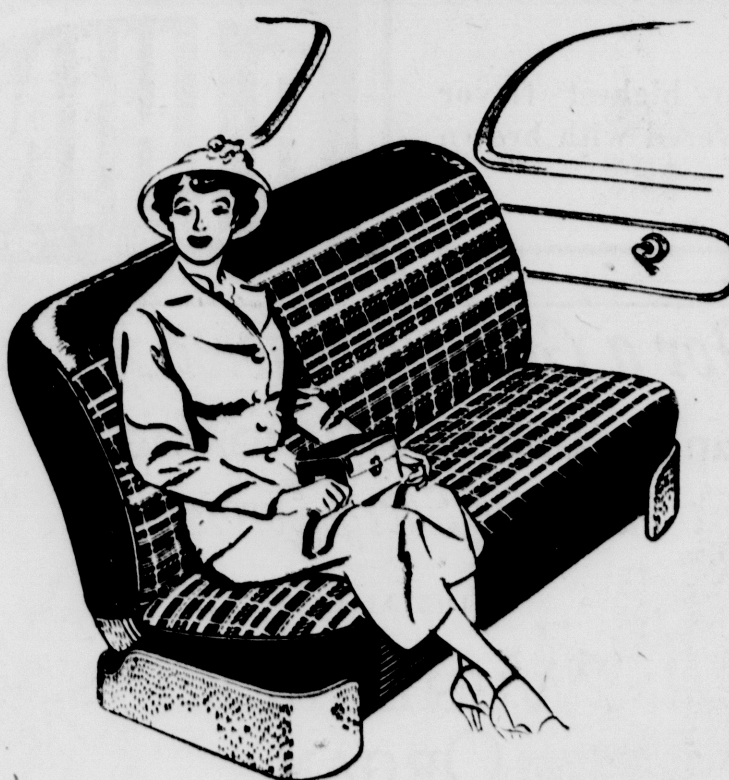

Mrs. Marvin Ebert has returned to Chicago following a weeks visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Eymor.

'Best-Dressed'
Does Not Require
A Small Fortune

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD—(AP)—This one is for the ladies. It's all about Eve Arden and how to be best-dressed without spending a fortune.

The actress claims it's possible. In fact, she has done it. Her name pops up on various best-dressed lists every now and then, and yet she declares she doesn't lavish her salary at the exclusive shops.

"Take this suit I'm wearing," she said. "It's fully five years old. Yet people are always complimenting me on my new suit."

"There's no reason why any woman should go broke in order to be a good dresser."

"Could a girl who earns $45 a week make the best-dressed lists?" I asked.

Here Are the Rules.

"I don't see why not," she replied blithely. I challenged her to lay down some rules. And here they are:

1. Don't wait for the occasion to arise before you buy a dress. If you need a dress in a hurry, you probably won't find what you want and will make a mistake. Buy the dress you like when you come across it; the occasion will arise later.

2. Do a lot of shopping without buying. Find out what is in the stores and then you will be able to tell a bargain. Keep an eye on the latest styles, but don't follow them blindly. Make them fit you. Taste is more important than style.

3. Have confidence in your clothes. Don't buy anything you don't feel comfortable wearing. You won't feel well-dressed and you won't look well-dressed.

4. Have a basic dress, either black or navy blue. You can find many ways to decorate it so it seems like several dresses.

5. Learn to sew. For a small amount of money you can piece out your wardrobe with full blouses, peasant skirts and other things that are easy to make.

6. Don't buy cheap clothes. There's no economy in buying dresses that will fall apart in a month or so. Buy good suits, since they can last for years without going out of style.

Wise Selection

7. Don't spend too much money on evening clothes. You don't wear them as often as your other clothes. And there's no point in buying gowns that will be so conspicuous that you won't want to wear them to many occasions.

8. Don't splurge on hats. Fancy hats (you can buy them cheaply if you shop) can be okay with plain suits. But otherwise unnoticeable hats are preferred, so they don't distract from the rest of your wardrobe.

9. Have one focal point in your outfit. It can be your dress, your hat, your jewelry or your accessories. But don't try to feature more than one or you'll look overdressed.

There it is, girls. No reason why you can't look like a Paris model if you follow Eve's rules.

Concert Campaign
Response Ahead
Of Last Year

The Delta County Community Concert association reached the midway point in its membership drive today, with two days remaining to complete the drive.

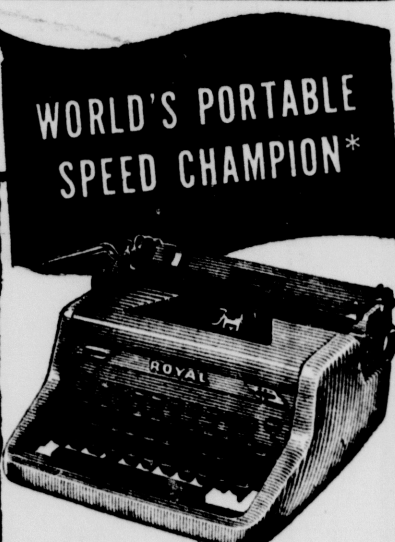

Mrs. H. C. Gerletti, secretary of the association, who is working at headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce office this week, reported this noon that membership is ahead of last year at this time, and requests that all membership sales people report on their individual sales tomorrow. Office hours at headquarters are from 9 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. each day until Friday.

A successful campaign will mean that Delta county will enjoy the finest concerts obtainable next season.

Anybody who has not been contacted personally may purchase a membership at the Chamber of Commerce office by calling 654. A concentrated effort is being made to gain 600 memberships this year so that the famous Philharmonic Piano Quartet may be included in the concert series. If this membership quota is met the Philharmonic Quartet will appear, plus two other fine concerts. Announcement of the full series will be made after the executive board has made the selections at the completion of the campaign Friday.

Anyone purchasing a membership in the association may make suggestions to the board as to their concert preferences and every effort will be made to fill these requirements.

Cries Of Self Sacrifice Will
Humiliate Child

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

Inevitably the day comes to most of us when we suddenly and resentfully think: "My, how I sacrifice myself for my children."

Don't let the idea come and go without doing something about it. Face the probability that you have been neglecting your own needs and over-indulging your children's wants. Then take steps. Deny the dancing lessons, the new formal dress or the bicycle—and go out and buy yourself the splurge, the new hat, the time to yourself—or whatever else it is you want.

Whatever it costs will be cheap is the price of your recovery from your attack of pity for your sad lot.

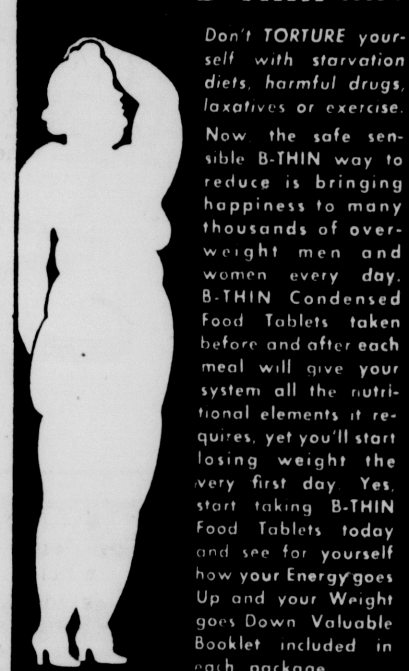

Over and over again the cry from the parents of bitter and resentful problem children is:

"Why do they feel this way when I have sacrificed so much for them?"

They feel that way because their parents' constant talk of self-sacrifice is a direct frontal attack upon children's self-respect.

Children are humiliated when they have to take what is begrudged to them.

for the time, care and money we expend upon them. Since it is quite impossible for them to feel grateful for gifts which are begrudged, our groans of self-denial freeze their emotional assets of appreciation and gratitude.

In the position of the taker who despairs of ever being able to return the favors given him, they become irritable with frustration. Unless we wake up to the inroads we are making on their self-respect, they can become so discouraged by the prospect of a future that promises no hope of discharging their debt, that they turn upon us in anger and hate.

When we do not take as much joy in giving as our young people take in receiving, steps should be taken to restore our joy in giving.

If your youngster has been unaccountably moody lately; if he has been given to sudden and mysterious flashes of temper and impudence, check back. May! you have been wearing parents' hood's most unpopular headgear—the martyr's halo.

This is no time to twiddle your thumbs and say "but there is nothing I can do" when people inquire what you are doing in the defense effort.

Young people who think nothing of dancing until the wee hours and expending their energies in rigorous play, certainly should have the stamina to devote to little extra jobs after school and weekends.

If there is no real defense set-up organized in your town, get yourself into a job so that somebody can be relieved for more important work.

The shortage of nurses, for instance, makes it imperative for young girls to get interested in roles as nurses' aids. Sometimes nurses, who are badly needed in the war effort, must stay on the job because the hospital staff is down to the irreducible minimum. Nurses' aids can do chores which otherwise keep qualified nurses busy.

Foundling hospitals always are looking for help, and here too there usually is a shortage of nurses.

Sometimes there are jobs which can be done at home. And, of course, the Red Cross always can use help.

One group of New York girls organized a cake-of-the-month club. Each girl bakes bread, cake or cookies for service men at least once a month. These are wrapped in aluminum foil to be kept fresh until they arrive at their destination.

Another group of girls makes jellies, marmalade, pickles, etc. These jars are packed carefully in papers and straw before shipment.

The girls began this service after ascertaining the names of the boys in their community and the units with which they were serving. The girls each choose a boy to whom to send their package, but rotate the names so that each boy gets a package from a different girl every month.

This club is growing and there is now talk of a muffler-and-glove-of-the-month club, also. One boy who received a holiday fruit cake wrote from Korea: "The fruit cake was simply wonderful and my buddy and I cut it in one-inch squares so that it would last longer. Sometimes we cheat and eat three and four squares — but we've still got a couple of weeks' supply left."

Oriental Look Seen In Separates For Travel Or Home Change-Abouts

By GAILE DUGAS

NEA Staff Writer

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Sophisticated separates that have an Oriental look can form the backbone of change-about wardrobes for travel or for wear at home.

The fabrics used for these new separates are exotic: silky Chinese pongee, rough textured Hindu cloth, fisherman's netting, and mandarin straw braid. The Oriental look becomes apparent in short coolie jackets, sweeping saris and billowing harem skirts.

The designs of Greta Platry, these separates are in soft jade pink, deep lotus green, Ming yellow, China blue and white porcelain.

A muted plaid in lotus green

Many girls have written asking now it is possible to become pen pals with service men — so here is your opportunity to be a cheerful little earful. But don't correspond with boys who are not known to your community, unless they are recommended by friends.

When writing to these strange boys, stick to interesting subjects — don't dwell on all the fun the kids back home are having. Try to restrain yourself, too, from getting a romantic attachment to your pen friend via the mailman. If you can be impersonal about your letter writing, at the same time being warm and friendly, that is ideal. But don't get possessive about a man you've never met just because you've sent him a few letters and cookies.

and Ming yellow is used for a Hindu cloth, mushroom pleated skirt (left) topped by a matching plaid sleeveless blouse and a lotus green linen rib length coolie jacket. The jacket has elbow length fan sleeves.

Silky natural pongee fashions a full skirt (right) worn with an ebony fish net cardigan with an all-over surface pattern in natural straw braid embroidery. The cardigan has push-up sleeves and smoothly fitted rib-knit waistband.

To prevent moths from feasting upon the upholstery of your slipcovered furniture, remove the covers once a month and vacuum thoroughly, using the upholstery attachment. If possible, open windows wide while cleaning. Light and air are further discouragements for these pests. As an added precaution, de-moth twice a year, using the mothproofing attachment of your vacuum. Spray the vapor upon springs and webbing as well as upholstery.

Retail Career Advised For Women

(P) Newsfeatures

BLOOMINGTON, Ind.—Marketing is one field in which women often have a better chance than men for key positions and the five-figure salaries that go with them.

That's the word of Prof. C. W. Barker, chairman of the Department of Marketing in the Indiana University School of Business, who points out that retailing is the best paying of all business fields for women because there are so many good salaried jobs available.

After receiving a B. S. degree in marketing a woman who joins a large department store as a sales trainee could expect to begin at about $40 a week.

At the end of her training period—ordinarily two or three years but often sooner if the girl shows unusual promise — she should be making between $60 and $90 weekly and have a responsible position such as assistant buyer, head of stock or supervisor of sales clerks.

The next step is advancement to a position as buyer, or perhaps as fashionist or stylist of a certain type of merchandise such as dresses, home furnishings or china. Annual salaries for these jobs range from $5,000 to $15,000 and other executive jobs go still higher.

Beautiful Artist
Models Shiver, Join
Union To Get Raise

TORONTO—Eleven beautiful artists models here say that rising living costs, cold drafts in studios and baby sitters are making their lives anything but a bed of roses and champagne.

They've joined the artists models federal union (AFL) and are trying to recruit 3 similar posers, as well as fashion and photographic models, in their drive for more money and better conditions.

The girls told AFL Canadian organizer Russell Harvey they are paid $1.25 an hour and haven't had a raise since 1947. On call seven days a week, they said they average only $20 to $30 a week, and from it must pay all expenses, even baby sitters for those with babies.

Their two biggest employers are the Ontario college of art and the board of education. At the college one model said, dust was an inch deep on the dressing room floor and the atmosphere was "generally shabby."

Another complained about poorly-heated studios and the drafts on her bare skin in life classes.

"Why sometimes I get so chilled I can't speak," she said.

Make Change In Milk Ordinance

Proposed Regulations Up Again In 2 Weeks

Action of Gladstone's proposed new milk ordinance has been deferred until changes discussed and agreed upon at a regular commission meeting Monday night can be incorporated in the regulations.

The ordinance introduced several weeks ago and up for public hearing Monday night was drafted by Dr. O. S. Hult, city health officer.

It provided a minimum 3.5 per cent butter fat content for milk; regular tests for Brucellosis or Bang's disease which causes undulant fever of all cattle of producers selling to licensees; licensing of all local dealers; TB and pasteurizing of all milk and cream; minimum bacterial standards in raw milk and monthly settlement tests on raw milk on state acceptance standards.

Monday evening, Dr. William Harrison of the Delta-Menominee Health unit was present and made a number of suggestions some of which are to be incorporated in the ordinance before being reconsidered at the next commission meeting.

Among them was fixing a maximum bacteria count of 50,000 after pasteurization and the addition of compiled state requirements for producers and processing plants as prescribed by the State Health Department and the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

There also were a number of minor changes to be considered.

If and when adopted, any dairy complying with provisions of the ordinance will, upon application, be granted licenses to sell their products in the City of Gladstone.

'Kick-Off' Events

The annual Red Cross drive in Schoolcraft county was intensified Monday and Tuesday following "kick-off" breakfasts for solicitors at the First Baptist church and the Lincoln school gymnasium. The goal is $2,895.

Dr. E. J. Brenner, speaking at the Monday morning breakfast at the First Baptist church, told of his war experiences with the Red Cross in Europe and urged that people give generously to this worthy cause.

Also on the program for Monday's breakfast was a 12-minute motion picture, "The Red Cross in Korea," exhibited by Sgt. George Williams, of Escanaba.

Dr. Merle Wehner also discussed Red Cross activities in war time during his talk Tuesday morning at the Lincoln gymnasium. To men overseas, he said, the Red Cross brought a touch of home, and he told of the organization's varied activities in both allied and enemy countries. In particular, he paid high tribute to the Red Cross nursing staff.

Mrs. L. E. Wilson, roll call chairman, presided at both breakfast programs. Members of the local Red Cross board also were introduced at the sessions.

Thirty-three persons were present for the Tuesday breakfast, and a larger number for Monday's event.
